THE AMERICAN LEAD TRUST.

American Lead a Cent a Pound Less In England Than

IN HIGHLY PROTECTED AMERICA

The Government a Partner In All Tariff Trusts-Does Not Share Profits But Keeps Off Competitors and Is a Valuable Partner.

Much has been written and spoken of late about trusts. For the life of me cannot see the difference between what a trust can do and what a firm with a large capital can do. Both may employ a promoter and place worthless shares of stock, bonds or some variety of "securities" on sale, keeping an eye on the guileless, all of which is common, and ike the confidence game, goes on for-

I cannot, however, share in the abuse of a fair and honest aggregation of capital and especially of that particular aggregation known as corporationan absolute necessary form of organization for carrying on business-but I will and can agree with the utter condemnation of what some of them do, what they are intended for doing, but what is only made possible for them to do by the government being in partnership with them-and a most powerful partner, too, without a share in the profits, as a government.

The government booms the stock, keeps any competitor, humps things up occasionally for the stockholders by introducing a bill in congress for building ships, and what not?-and lately a coterie has the gall to propose that the government pay for building other ships than its own!

The most of the combines of today, created for the purpose of extortion in price, could not and would not exist, if it was not for the part the United States takes them.

EXAMPLE OF LEAD TRUST.

Here is one example, and the same is true of several commodities managed by combines. This quotation is from the New York Commercial, March 6

"Lead-Was steady and unchanged at 4.70c per 1b spot to March. In St. Louis the market was firm, with scant offerings at 4.571/2@4.621/2, according to brands. Soft Spanish was unchanged at L16 11s 3d in London. Arrivals at this port were 1,000 tons bullion from Tampico; exports from this port, 650 tons to Hamburg. Imports of lead during the week ending March 2 were 2,806 tons; exports for the week 1,794 tons."

Few see these quotations. Very few understand them. The great mass do The election of Sunday-school officers not know anything about them whatwas held in the M. E. church Sunday ever. Figure out the pounds, shillings morning and thte following elected for and pence and the London quotation for the ensuing year: Superintendent, Miss a long ton of 2,240 lbs., and it makes the Olive Smith; assistant superintendent, price of lead in London $3.69 per 100 lbs Mary Swartzlow; secretary, Mabel Sny- as against $4.70 in New York-$1.10 der; assistant secretary, Mrs. Allman; more in New York than London, or a

Yet, some is exported and must go at the price in London. Please note, some is imported, also; this is brought here and re-exported without payment of any

The kernel of it all is that about 20 men are managing the matter of price of all the lead consumed in the United States and have been doing so for sometime-with the aid of the government. Not a pound is sold without the concurrence of these men, and it is held as firmly and nicely as could be. It is ton. managed with consumate skill.

Most likely many will say, at first thought, "it is nothing to me if there is a duty on lead." Such people do not know how this material enters into the cost of so many things. Thousands of men are working with this material— Bethlehem township.

The eminent divine and editor, Rev. Wm. W. Bell, of Dayton, Ohio, says editorially in the Sunday School Union: 'We desire to state that from personal acquaintance, we know Dr. Miles to be a most skilled specialist, a man who has spared neither labor nor money to keep himself abreast of the great advancement in medical science. He is withal a thorough and conscientious gentleman, and his offices are constantly thronged with people who come from all parts of the country to avail themselves of his very great skill." Mr. Julius Keister, of 356 Michigan not know that lead has anything to

This lead combine has arisen and is a result of the tariff on lead. It could not exist without this tariff. It is the very perfection of a trust or combine brought into existence by the government's action.

The same may be said of lumber, and of many other articles manufactured by Truly it may be said the commercial element is predominating in affairs of government in an unwonted degree. Evidently there is some reward for the "fat frying" process in the past and a keen eye on the future.

Under the tariff law one can import lead, make it into pipe, re-export it, and get the duty remitted. But one who makes it into forms not capable of being identified, although for export, cannot get the duty remitted. Thus one citizen can have, while another cannot have, free trade in the same article. This drawback clause was framed in recognition of the fact that foreign commerce can only be carried on successfully with freedom of trade. If the actual effects of protective tariff egislation were known, it would swept out of existence quickly, and our congress would be confined to its true constitutional functions. Its hands would then be kept off from all attempts at fixing values of commodities.

BROTHER HANNA GROWS PROFANE. (Omaha World Herald.)

Mr. Hanna characterizes the whole Puerto Rico controversy as "damned nonsense." We are pained to note Mr. Hanna's growing disposition to resort to profanity. We are also pained to note that Mr. Hanna always denounces as "damned nonsense" anything that smacks of common justice that also smacks of danger to the trusts and corporations.
